SAINT AUGUSTINE OF CANTERBURY

This coming Friday, May 27, the Church Universal celebrates the memorial of Saint Augustine of Canterbury, a significant figure in the history of Western Christendom.

In the year 596, some 40 monks set out from Rome to evangelize the Anglo-Saxons in England. Leading the group was Augustine, the prior of their monastery in Rome. Hardly had he and his men reached Gaul (France) when they heard stories of the ferocity of the Anglo-Saxons and of the treacherous waters of the English Channel. Augustine returned to Rome and to the pope who had sent them—St. Gregory the Great (September 3)—only to be assured by him that their fears were groundless.

Augustine again set out. This time the group crossed the English Channel and landed in the territory of Kent, ruled by King Ethelbert, a pagan married to a Christian. Ethelbert received them kindly, set up a residence for them in Canterbury and within the year, on Pentecost Sunday, 597, was himself baptized. After being consecrated a bishop in France, Augustine returned to Canterbury, where he founded his see. He constructed a church and monastery near where the present cathedral, begun in 1070, now stands. As the faith spread, additional sees were established at London and Rochester.

Work was sometimes slow and Augustine did not always meet with success. Attempts to reconcile the Anglo-Saxon Christians with the original Briton Christians (who had been driven into western England by Anglo-Saxon invaders) ended in dismal failure. Augustine failed to convince the Britons to give up certain Celtic customs at variance with Rome and to forget their bitterness, helping him evangelize their Anglo-Saxon conquerors.

Laboring patiently, Augustine wisely heeded the missionary principles—quite enlightened for the times—suggested by Pope Gregory the Great: purify rather than destroy pagan temples and customs; let pagan rites and festivals be transformed into Christian feasts; retain local customs as far as possible. The limited success Augustine achieved in England before his death in 605, a short eight years after he arrived in England, would eventually bear fruit long after in the conversion of England. Augustine of Canterbury can truly be called the “Apostle of England.”

Father, by the preaching of St. Augustine of Canterbury, you led the people of England to the gospel. May the fruits of his work continue in your Church. Grant this through our Lord Jesus Christ, your Son, who lives and reigns with you and the Holy Spirit, one God, forever and ever. Amen.

IN SPIRIT AND TRUTH: THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Today's first reading traces the origins of the order of deacons, who were called from the community to assist with the church's ministry to the poor and needy. The apostles were tasked principally with preaching and leading worship. Isn't it telling that the apostles saw their liturgical task as so central that, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, they established another order of ministry in the church to attend to practical tasks so that the community's worship would remain undisturbed? The Church in the apostolic era was clearly committed to worship in spirit and truth because they understood, better than we do, that the liturgy makes Christ present! In our second reading, Saint Peter advises the Church to be mindful of its identity. We are the body of the Christ, we are the temple of God, a structure of living stones fitted together in order to offer God authentic worship. Once again, Saint Peter makes it clear that our principal task as disciples of Jesus is to offer "spiritual sacrifices." What does he mean? Spiritual sacrifice is the gift we make of ourselves through prayer and worship by which we offer our very hearts and minds, and indeed our lives, to the Father. This is the heart of the baptismal priesthood! We all share in Christ's priesthood as the baptized, because we are to make living sacrifices of our lives, which are offered to the Trinity in and through worship. Saint Peter Chrysologus (5th cent) wrote: "How marvelous is the priesthood of the Christian, for he is both the victim that is offered on his own behalf, and the priest who makes the offering...Let your heart be an altar. Then, with full confidence in God, present your body for sacrifice...God thirsts not for blood, but for self-surrender; God is appeased not by slaughter, but by the offering of your own free will." Our readings today challenge us to recognize how central authentic worship is to our calling.

NEW TRANSLATION UPDATE: THE NEW CREED

A most unusual word will soon appear in the language of the Creed – the phrase "consubstantial with the Father." It will replace "one in being with the Father." The greatest heresy of the era in which the Creed was formulated in Greek claimed that Christ was not of the same substance of the Father but only of a similar substance, and there, not equal to God. The Church fathers, wanting to be very precise in language to be used for such a great mystery, translated the Greek into the Latin Creed with the word "consubstantial." Thus, for philosophical and theological reasons, in the Creed, then, "consubstantial" means that Christ was of one substance with the Father and with our humanity. There is no doubt that this more precise wording is a better choice in naming the great mystery that is the relationship of Jesus Christ to God the Father and to us, His adopted brothers and sisters.

Year of Liturgical and Spiritual Renewal

ST. FRANCIS READERS OF THE WORD

The next reader schedule for July to the end of December 2011 will be prepared for mailing on June 14th. Readers who have summer plans or special requests in terms of the next schedule should contact Doug Carr (789-1103 or drchmc@cox.net) by June 1st. The Ministry of the Word is a very spiritual part of our worship. We are looking to add additional Readers to this ministry and especially at our 8:00am and 12:00NN Masses. If you are interested in inquiring about this most rewarding ministry, please contact Father Nick, Father Joe or Doug Carr. Our celebration of Mass is more meaningful and pleasing to God with the involvement of our parish family. Won't you consider joining this special ministry?

As therefore you received Christ Jesus the Lord, so live in him, rooted and built up in him and established in the faith, just as you were taught, abounding in thanksgiving.— Colossians
